RON COLEMAN is a Mental Health Trainer and Consultant specializing in psychosis prevention and resolution. He has designed training packages to enable voice hearers to gain ascendancy over the negative aspects of the voice hearing experience. His own route to recovery, after spending 13 years in & out of the psychiatric system, has given him many insights into the many difficult issues facing today's mental health services.

Ron has published several books including 'Politics of the Madhouse', co-authored 'Working with Voices' & 'Working to Recovery' and wrote 'Recovery an Alien Concept?' Ron is now back in his homeland of Scotland after 20 years of self-imposed exile.

KAREN TAYLOR is a Registered Mental Health Nurse, with 16 years' experience in the National Health Service in England with both older people and adults of working age. She has designing, implementing and managing innovative community care services. She has co-authored the workbook, 'Working to Recovery' and has also been involved in introducing recovery training into Australia, New Zealand, Palestine, Denmark and Italy as well as the UK.

Now based in Scotland, and director with Ron Coleman in 'Working to Recovery Limited' (Website for reference: <http://www.workingtotherecovery.co.uk/>)
